It is now focused on film, television and increasingly the Internet. The research design explores emergent theory instead of predictive theory and engages in a critical, reflexive analysis involving a cultural perspective of technology. The intellectual life that these people brought to their Departments, to the University as a whole, was in itself a lesson in community.

They are that you are pub the educated eye visual culture and pedagogy in the life. Artmaking is often a process of open experimentation without a clearly articulated set of questions, and art in schools sometimes follows this expressive model. I think speaking about these things would be a nice way to end: to showcase your current and upcoming research projects, and to conclude with a note or two of optimism and hopefulness. At the very least he is allowing for another, presumably a historical framework of determination.
