The degree of integration depends on how this interaction affects both structure and system performance: a fully integrated system in this light would be characterised by a higher overall performance than the sum of the performances of its structures. It was established in Socio-economic perspectives. The EU was founded, after two disastrous world wars. Especially in the current political climate in Europe and elsewhere, in which a cooperative attitude between governments cannot be taken for granted, being able to maintain productive international cooperation would send a particularly strong sign that negotiation and compromise are worthwhile, and indeed vital, undertakings.
